

Coaching the Next Level™

The Reality:

when some people are promoted from an individual contributor role into a supervisory or managerial role, they struggle to find their footing. Whether it's being too aggressive and confrontational or too passive and conflict avoidant, they just need some guidance.

The Results:

after a supervisor or manager completes the Coaching the Next Level™ program, they will have a better understanding of themselves, their triggers, and how people perceive them; and they will learn how to communicate more effectively and hold people accountable professionally.

The Cost:

this program is much less costly than sending a leader off for a traditional week at a training center and requires a minimal amount of time away from work.